Trek

Dayara Bugyal Trek

Overview :

- The Dayara Bugyal Trek is one of the most scenic and rewarding treks in the Uttarakhand region of the Indian Himalayas. Known for its vast, undulating meadows, the trek offers panoramic views of some of the tallest peaks in India, including Mt. Bandarpoonch, Mt. Black Peak, and Gangotri Massif. Situated at an elevation of around 12,000 feet (3,658 meters), Dayara Bugyal is a high-altitude alpine meadow that comes alive with vibrant wildflowers during the summer and transforms into a snow-covered wonderland in the winter.
- The trek starts from the quaint village of Raithal, about 180 kilometers from Dehradun, and takes you through dense oak and pine forests, crystal-clear streams, and traditional mountain villages. The trail is moderate, making it perfect for both beginner and experienced trekkers. Along the way, you will encounter stunning campsites, with the Dayara meadows being the highlight, providing ample space to relax and enjoy the serene beauty of nature.
- The best time to undertake the Dayara Bugyal trek is from May to November, with the spring and autumn months offering the best conditions. Winter treks, from December to February, offer a completely different experience, with snow-covered landscapes attracting adventurers seeking a snowy getaway.
- With its breathtaking vistas, diverse landscapes, and relatively easy accessibility, the Dayara Bugyal trek has become a favorite for nature lovers, photographers, and trekkers seeking an unforgettable Himalayan experience.

Day 1

Journey from Dehradun to Raithal

- We begin our adventure early in the morning, departing from Dehradun and heading toward Raithal. The scenic drive will treat us to stunning views as we follow the path alongside the Bhagirathi River. Along the way, we'll pass through Landour and Uttarkashi, with a stop at a Pahadi Dhaba to enjoy a traditional Garhwali Thali. One of the highlights of the route is Moriana Top (Tingling Point), offering clear views of majestic peaks such as Bandarpunch, Black Peak, Srikanth, and Gangotri. On particularly clear days, even the towering Chaukhamba or Nanda Devi can be spotted. As we approach Chinyalisaur, the expansive Tehri Dam reservoir comes into view. Continuing our drive, we will reach Uttarkashi, where we can visit the Kashi Vishwanath temple and stock up on any essentials. Remember, Uttarkashi is the last place where you can use an ATM, so be sure to withdraw cash if needed. By evening, we'll arrive in Raithal, where we'll enjoy a cozy meal and settle in for the night.

Day 2

Trekking from Raithal to Gui Campsite

- After a hearty breakfast, we'll gear up for the trek to Gui. Our journey begins at the entry point of Dayara Bugyal, where you can snap some photos before hitting the trail. Along the way, we'll pass the Nag Devta temple, a water point, and a sacred tree where locals and trekkers leave coins and other offerings. The trek is a relatively easy 5 kilometers through dense, green forests, home to a variety of flora and fauna. Springtime transforms the landscape, with rhododendrons in full bloom, adding vibrant colors to the trail. The well-marked path ensures a smooth trek, and after a few hours, we'll arrive at Gui, where we'll spend the night. As the sun sets, take in the beautiful view of Srikanth and Gangotri Peaks from the campsite.

Day 3

Trek from Gui to Dayara Top and Return to Gui

- Today's adventure takes us to Dayara Top, covering a round trip of about 12 kilometers. The trek leads us past Chilapada and opens up into the breathtaking alpine meadows of Dayara Bugyal. These expansive grasslands, especially beautiful in the daytime, are a sight to behold. After a final steep climb, we'll reach Dayara Top, offering panoramic views of Bandarpunch, Kala Naag, Srikanth, and the Gangotri ranges. Depending on the season, Dayara Bugyal presents a different charm—from lush green pastures and wildflowers in spring and summer to snow-covered fields in winter, ideal for snow trekking and skiing. In late June through the monsoon season, herds of sheep graze across the meadows. After exploring Dayara Top for a few hours, we'll head back to Gui for the night.

Day 4

Gui to Raithal and Return to Dehradun

- Our final day starts with a farewell to Gui as we begin our descent back to Raithal. The 5-kilometer trek downhill takes around 2 to 3 hours, retracing our steps through the same forested path. Upon reaching Raithal, we'll rest briefly before starting our drive back to Dehradun, which will take about 6 to 7 hours. This marks the end of our memorable journey through the stunning landscapes of the Dayara Bugyal trek.
